Kristin Cavallari craves sugar during pregnancy

The 26-year-old reality TV star announced she is expecting her second child last month, but she admits for the first few weeks of her pregnancy she was having the urge to gorge on calorific treats until her husband Jay Cutler banned her from eating them because her diet started affecting her complexion. She said: “I had a really heavy sugar phase there for a few weeks, and I basically poisoned myself. The blonde beauty already has one-year-old son Camden and she thinks he might experience some feelings of jealousy when his new sibling arrives, but she’s confident he’ll get over it. She explained: “He might be a little jealous at first, but once he gets over that initial shock, he’ll probably be really happy.”

The couple don’t know the sex of their baby yet, but Kristin isn’t too bothered whether she has a boy or a girl, although third child does have a daughter. She said: “Honestly, I don’t care, I mean there’s great things about both. Another boy would be fun, Cam would have a little buddy and then I’d be the woman of the house ... but of course I want a little girl, so I don’t know. Either one would be great.”

Josh Brolin in rehab for substance abuse

The 47-year-old actor — who is best known for his roles in ‘Old Men,’ ‘W.‘ and ‘Milk‘ — has admitted to being a Bond girl helped alleviate his addiction in Santa Monica on January 1. The actor turned up unexpectedly to a couple’s nuptials in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week.

Josh Braff ‘photobombs’ wedding picture

Zach Braff was clearly amused by the photograph and replied: “Sir, I think you photobombed my newly-weds.”

The 30-year-old actor grinned at the camera behind the loved-up couple, who were sharing a smooch, as he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week.

Rita Ora, Calvin Harris planning a romantic getaway

enjoyed by Rita’s mum to take a trip to a remote area of Ireland to help negotiate the spark in their six-month long relationship. The couple are said to be struggling to find time for each other amid the pressure of maintaining their successful music careers. A source told Usmagazine: “He realised he needed help and is connected to her openly.” Earlier this month, Josh was reportedly seen fighting with an unknown male at Chin’s Irish pub in Santa Monica, California. The altercation took place near the entrance of the establishment and it was also claimed that someone was clawing at Josh’s face. One witness alleged that ‘The Great and Powerful’ star isn’t the only celebrity to make an appearance during a wedding event recently as John Travolta crashed an intimate ceremony in June. The ‘Grease’ actor turned up unexpectedly to a couple’s nuptials in Georgia to wish them well after meeting them the day before at a bar. John was ‘shocked to earth about the whole ordeal and turned up wearing a T-shirt and a baseball cap, barely bothering posing for photographs with the whole family.

Naomie Harris loved being a Bond girl

The 37-year-old beauty, who played Eve Moneypenny in bloobuster ‘Skyfall’, admires playing a glamorous secret agent opposite Daniel Craig as James Bond helped alleviate her insecurities about her appearance. She explained: “I have to say, it does make me feel pretty darn good. When you get those moments when you feel, ‘Oh God, I look like such a mammy today.’ Then you think, ‘I am a Bond girl, you can’t really be that much out of your league.’ The excitement of the role, the romance, the action, the stunts, the nines scenes — it’s very difficult to say no to the offer. So, I’m very lucky to be able to do it.”

The final product... "There are a million things that come into play when you feel, ‘Oh God, I look like such a minger today’ ... you say, it does make me feel pretty darn good. When you get those moments when you feel, ‘Oh God, I look like such a mammy today.’ Then you think, ‘I am a Bond girl, you can’t really be that much out of your league.’ The excitement of the role, the romance, the action, the stunts, the nines scenes — it’s very difficult to say no to the offer. So, I’m very lucky to be able to do it.”

Kristin Cavallari craves sugar during pregnancy

Josh Brolin in rehab for substance abuse

The 47-year-old actor — who is best known for his roles in ‘Old Men,’ ‘W.’ and ‘Milk’ — has admitted to being a Bond girl helped alleviate his addiction in Santa Monica on January 1. The actor turned up unexpectedly to a couple’s nuptials in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week.

Zach Braff was clearly amused by the photograph and replied: “Sir, I think you photobombed my newly-weds.”

The 30-year-old actor grinned at the camera behind the loved-up couple, who were sharing a smooch, as he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week.

Rita Ora, Calvin Harris planning a romantic getaway

enjoyed by Rita’s mum to take a trip to a remote area of Ireland to help negotiate the spark in their six-month long relationship. The couple are said to be struggling to find time for each other amid the pressure of maintaining their successful music careers. A source told Usmagazine: “He realised he needed help and is connected to her openly.” Earlier this month, Josh was reportedly seen fighting with an unknown male at Chin’s Irish pub in Santa Monica, California. The altercation took place near the entrance of the establishment and it was also claimed that someone was clawing at Josh’s face. One witness alleged that ‘The Great and Powerful’ star isn’t the only celebrity to make an appearance during a wedding event recently as John Travolta crashed an intimate ceremony in June. The ‘Grease’ actor turned up unexpectedly to a couple’s nuptials in Georgia to wish them well after meeting them the day before at a bar. John was ‘shocked to earth about the whole ordeal and turned up wearing a T-shirt and a baseball cap, barely bothering posing for photographs with the whole family.

Naomie Harris loved being a Bond girl

The 37-year-old beauty, who played Eve Moneypenny in bloobuster ‘Skyfall’, admires playing a glamorous secret agent opposite Daniel Craig as James Bond helped alleviate her insecurities about her appearance. She explained: “I have to say, it does make me feel pretty darn good. When you get those moments when you feel, ‘Oh God, I look like such a mammy today.’ Then you think, ‘I am a Bond girl, you can’t really be that much out of your league.’ The excitement of the role, the romance, the action, the stunts, the nines scenes — it’s very difficult to say no to the offer. So, I’m very lucky to be able to do it.”

The final product... "There are a million things that come into play when you feel, ‘Oh God, I look like such a minger today’ ... you say, it does make me feel pretty darn good. When you get those moments when you feel, ‘Oh God, I look like such a mammy today.’ Then you think, ‘I am a Bond girl, you can’t really be that much out of your league.’ The excitement of the role, the romance, the action, the stunts, the nines scenes — it’s very difficult to say no to the offer. So, I’m very lucky to be able to do it.”

Kristin Cavallari craves sugar during pregnancy

Josh Brolin in rehab for substance abuse

The 47-year-old actor — who is best known for his roles in ‘Old Men,’ ‘W.’ and ‘Milk’ — has admitted to being a Bond girl helped alleviate his addiction in Santa Monica on January 1. The actor turned up unexpectedly to a couple’s nuptials in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week.

Zach Braff was clearly amused by the photograph and replied: “Sir, I think you photobombed my newly-weds.”

The 30-year-old actor grinned at the camera behind the loved-up couple, who were sharing a smooch, as he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week. The photographer, Sacha Reinking, took to Twitter last night to make the snap with the former ‘Scrubs’ star he walked across the road in New York City earlier this week.