

Prince Andrew dating Monika Jakisic?

The British royal is said to be dating the Croatian beauty - an ex-girlfriend of George Clooney - after they were introduced by friends, celebrating his 54th birthday together last week at Cecconi's restaurant in London. A source told UsMagazine.com: "They sat next to each other at an intimate table by the front of the restaurant and were cuddling up to each other. Andrew was making Monika laugh and kissing her hand." The eyewitness added during the dinner "Monika gave him a birthday card and the server brought out a white birthday cake for dessert." Days later they were spotted at The Arts Club in Mayfair, where Andrew wrapped his arms around Monika and kissed her. Another source said: "It was obvious they are a couple, they looked like two lovebirds." Andrew, the Duke of York, was previously married to Sarah Ferguson from 1986 to 1996, and they have two daughters, Princess Beatrice, 25, and Princess Eugenie, 23, together. Although they are no longer married, Andrew and Sarah maintain a good relationship and even holiday as a family with their daughters. Monika, 33, first dated George in 2004 and they have had an on-off relationship since, and were said to be seeing each other again briefly last year after the 'Gravity' star's relationship with Stacy Keibler ended.

Winona Ryder once wore a $10 dress to Oscars

The 'Girl, Interrupted' star is an avid bargain hunter and lover of vintage clothes, and is also not afraid to recycle outfits she has previously worn to events. She told Red magazine: "Most of my wardrobe is vintage and I've worn dresses to the Oscars that I got for $10. "At Sean Penn's last Haiti gala I wore this vintage dress that I'd worn to a film premiere in 2005. I know that's kind of a no-no in the fashion world, but why wear something just once if you love it?" The 42-year-old actress rose to fame in the mid 80s while she was still a teenager and had continuing success in her 20s, which she says made her 30s hard, as her young looks meant she didn't always get picked for the roles she wanted. She added: "My early thirties were rough. I went through stuff that I would have gone through, and probably should have gone through much younger, but I had spent my twenties working. Even when I was the right age for older roles, people thought of me as being younger. It was tough because I'd had so much success in my early twenties." In the same interview Winona also said she one day hopes to work with 'The Wire' writer David Simon.

Lea Michele wanted kids with Cory Monteith

The 'Glee' actress, who was left devastated when her boyfriend and co-star was found dead in his hotel room in Vancouver, Canada, after a drug and alcohol overdose in July 2013, claims they wanted to start a family together. She told the new edition of UK's Glamour magazine: "We talked about children and what we would look like when we grew old." The 27-year-old star dated Cory, 31, for two years after meeting on set, and she finally feels "a bit more back together" after losing the actor, who she thinks would like to see her to fall in love again. She said: "It's so important to make sure I'm 100 percent OK before I get into a relationship. "People have to understand that I can't be alone forever. Cory wouldn't want that." The 'Cannonball' hitmaker will release her debut album, 'Louder' on March 17, and one of the tracks, 'If You Say So', represents the last words Cory ever said to her. The heart-wrenching ballad, which Lea co-wrote with Australian singer-songwriter Sia Furler, sees her sing about the week after Cory's tragic death. Lyrics include: 'It's just a week ago, you said I love you girl. I said I love you more. And a breath, a pause, you said, if you say so.'

Robin Thicke is trying to win Paula Patton back

The 'Blurred Lines' singer and his wife announced they have split after almost nine years of marriage earlier this week, but as he landed in Washington DC this ahead of a show, he said he is hoping they will get back together. He told TMZ.com: "I'm just trying to get her back." When questioned further, he added: "You know, [I'm] just trying to figure it out, man." Robin - who has a three-year-old son, Julian, with Paula - cancelled two concerts ahead of announcing the couple's split, but posted a message thanking his fans for their support and saying he's looking forward to resuming his tour on his website. He wrote: "I want to thank everyone for the well wishes these last few days. My fans mean everything to me. I'm looking forward to getting back on out on the road and performing in Washington, DC this Thursday, and the rest of the tour. Looking forward to seeing everyone out there!" Meanwhile it has emerged Paula had a huge argument with the 'Blurred Lines' singer following his appearance with Miley Cyrus at the MTV Video Music Awards (VMAs) last year, which featured the 21-year-old star Twerking against him. Paula is said to have found the incident insulting, particularly as it took place in front of a huge national TV audience. She is also said to be furious with Robin's insistence on continuing to party at clubs and frequently being pictured with various women.
