SKILLZ BRINGS FRIENDLY WAGERS TO iPHONE GAME PLAYERS

“Skillz wants to show our iPhone and Android users that they can play games for real money without losing,” CEO Andrew Paradise said in a statement.

Farmers, who have lost tractors and other vehicles to theft, have long been the main customers for the company. But Skillz, which has raised $20 million in venture capital, is targeting a younger demographic.

“It’s about making it easier for the general consumer, not just the gamer, to participate in real money-to-real money gaming,” said Paradise.

Skillz’s app allows players to choose opponents of varying skill levels and bet real money on the outcome of games. Users can use in-app purchases to buy premium coins, which can be used to bet on games.

For Skillz, the move into real money gaming is part of a broader effort to expand its user base and increase revenue.

In the past, Skillz has focused on competing with larger companies like Zynga and GSN, which offer games that can be played for real money.

By adding real money gaming to its platform, Skillz is looking to attract a larger audience of players who are willing to spend money on games.

Skillz is also looking to take advantage of the growing interest in real money gaming, particularly among younger players.

The company is currently working with a number of partners to develop games that can be played for real money, including a number of smaller indie developers.

The company is also looking to expand beyond mobile gaming, with plans to offer real money gaming on other platforms in the future.

However, Skillz will need to navigate a complex regulatory landscape in order to offer real money gaming to its users.

The company will need to ensure that its games are compliant with all relevant laws and regulations, and that it is able to provide a safe and secure environment for users.

Skillz is also looking to develop new revenue streams, such as advertising and subscription fees, to help offset the costs of offering real money gaming.

Skillz is looking to build on its existing success in mobile gaming, which has helped it to grow rapidly over the past few years.

The company has more than 1 million users, and has raised $20 million in venture capital to date.

With the addition of real money gaming, Skillz is looking to further expand its user base and increase its revenue potential.

But the company will need to be careful to ensure that it remains focused on providing a safe and enjoyable gaming experience for all of its users.

Skillz will need to be careful to balance the needs of its users with the demands of regulators, and to ensure that it is able to provide a safe and secure environment for all of its players.

Skillz is also looking to take a long-term view of the real money gaming market, and to build a sustainable business that can continue to grow and evolve over time.

As the market for real money gaming continues to evolve, Skillz is well-positioned to be a leading player in the space.

With its focus on providing a safe and enjoyable gaming experience, and its commitment to building a sustainable business, Skillz is well-positioned to be a leader in the real money gaming market.

The company is looking to continue to innovate and to build on its existing success, as it looks to take advantage of the growing interest in real money gaming.
