Kuwaiti president congratulates Iraqi President on re-election

KUWAIT: Kuwaiti President His Highness the Amir Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Jaber Al-Sabah congratulated Iraqi President Barham Salih on Sunday on his re-election, wishing him all success in his new term. Sheikh Sabah expressed his full support for the government and the people of Iraq to overcome all challenges and difficulties, wishing Barham Salih success in his work.

Iraq, which depends heavily on oil exports, is engaged in wide-scale military action against terror groups, namely the so-called Islamic State. The IS was driven out of the northern city Mosul recently following full-scale heavy fighting with government troops and paramilitary forces. On July 31, Kuwait officially announced that it started contacts with world countries, the World Bank and Iraq to prepare for hosting a donors' conference to rebuild areas liberated from the IS in Iraq, forecast in first quarter of 2018. — KUNA ticipated in the event. Egyptian Ambassador to Kuwait Yasser and praised the effort of Boushahr Ali Gallery and Yahiya Swailam for organizing and hosting this exhibition of Egyptian artists. “I was honorated in the past two years to know the talented Egyptian artists through exhibitions organized by the Egyptian cultural office in Kuwait and saw their commitment in culture and arts. I thanked the Egypt Embassy and the National Council for Culture, Arts and Literature for helping the artists to show their works. The exhibition will be open for 15 days to the public. The exhibition is part of a series of successive exhibitions by Egyptian artists, which the cultural office knew to highlight the acquires of the Egyptian ambassadors. “We have organized more than 28 exhibitions in 2017 for prominent artists in Kuwait, in addition to more than 28 different fairs,” said Salim.

He said, “My third piece is a girl with golden hair and gold plated parkasha that represent two main colors that Kuwait is keen to highlight under the auspices of the Kuwaiti embassy. “I am participating with five paintings that represent different topics related to Egypt, Sherif Ismail, an Egyptian artist and photographer, told KUNA’s mixed media and digital art in his paintings. “The home painting describes peace, represented by two doves. My second painting represents livelihood, and I mixed it with calligraphy. It shows how some people work hard to earn their livelihoods,” he said.

LEBANON WAR ADOPTS ABROAD DIG TO UNEARTH ROADS

LEBANON: A 23-year-old man who was "out for blood" when he attempted to detonate a bomb in an alley adjacent to BancFirst in downtown Oklahoma City, said he was held "III% ideology" and wanted "to start the next Oklahoma City bombing," Jerry Drake Varnell of Sayre, Oklahoma, said he had "lost his childhood." Varnell, who was arrested by FBI agents in June, used to work as a prison guard and had been living in a tent for three years. Varnell, who had been charged with attempting to blow up a U.S. building and plotting to bomb a bank, was arrested by the FBI on Monday.

The arrests were announced by Attorney General Jeff Sessions, who also announced the launch of a new task force to investigate domestic violent extremism. The task force, which will be led by the FBI, will focus on identifying and disrupting acts of domestic terrorism.

Session said the task force will "be a critical element in our ongoing efforts to prevent domestic violent extremism and to hold accountable those who commit such acts."

The FBI has identified several individuals who are believed to be involved in the Oklahoma City plot.

Sessions said the federal government would continue to work with state and local law enforcement to prevent future attacks.

Session also announced the appointment of a new assistant attorney general for national security.

The new assistant attorney general, Matthew Whitaker, will be responsible for overseeing the work of the National Security Division, which is responsible for investigating and prosecuting cases involving terrorism, espionage, and other threats to national security.

Whitaker, who previously served as the acting attorney general, will replace John Durham, who has been serving in that role since 2017.

Durham was appointed by President Trump to replace former Attorney General Jeff Sessions.

Whitaker, who served as the deputy attorney general under Sessions, will be the third person to hold the position of acting attorney general in the Trump administration.

MODI URGES INDIA TO REJECT VIOLENCE IN NAME OF RELIGION

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi today urged India to reject religious violence in the country and said all communities should live together in peace. He also said India's secular identity was the country's biggest strength.

The prime minister's address comes at a time when tensions have escalated between Muslims and Hindus in the country. Last month, 17 immigrants died in a sweltering tractor-trailer in San Antonio, Texas, as they were transported to the US border from Mexico.

In his speech, Modi said India's secularism had been the cornerstone of its political philosophy and that the country had never allowed religious violence to divide its people. He also reminded the audience of the importance of dialogue and inclusiveness.

MODI: "Let us reject violence in the name of religion. Let us throw all our efforts to ensure peace and unity among people of all faiths."

The prime minister also highlighted the achievements of the current government, which has been in power since 2014. He said the government had made significant progress in various sectors, including economy, education, and infrastructure.

The speech was broadcast live on national television and radio, reaching millions of viewers across the country.

Roadside bomb blast kills 8 soldiers in SW Pakistan

QUETTA, Pakistan: A roadside bomb blast rocked a passing military convoy near Quetta, the capital of Pakistan's southwestern province of Balochistan, on Wednesday. At least eight soldiers were killed, and several others were injured, officials said.

The blast was attributed to dissident Baloch separatists seeking greater autonomy for the region.

Militants preparing chemical attacks nabbed: Indonesia

BANDUNG, Indonesia: Indonesian police said they have arrested two suspected militants and seized chemical materials in a raid on a deserted building in the city of Bandung, about 150 kilometers (93 miles) east of the capital Jakarta.

The police said they found an arsenal of weapons, including a rocket-propelled grenade launcher, a 30mm machine gun, and a 12.7mm machine gun.

The police also said they seized a large quantity of chemical materials that could be used to make explosives.

The operation was carried out as part of a nationwide crackdown on militant activity.

Obama to visit Vietnam for summit with Thuc Duc

WASHINGTON: US President Barack Obama will visit Vietnam later this month to hold the first state visit of a US president in nearly 20 years, the White House said in a statement.

The visit comes as the US and Vietnam are working to strengthen their relationship, which has been strained in the past by issues such as trade and human rights.

NEWS-INDIAN AMERICAN VOTE POLLS SUGGEST TREND FOR MODI

WASHINGTON: Opinion polls released in recent days show a strong trend toward Prime Minister Narendra Modi's Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) ahead of the general elections in India next year.

However, the polls also indicate that the race is far from over, with Congress leader Rahul Gandhi's United Progressive Alliance (UPA) still in the reckoning.

An analysis of the events in Charlottesville on August 12, 2017, which saw white nationalists, neo-Nazis, and Alt-Right groups clash with counter-protesters.

Focus

The alt-right rues the loss of an idealized past, presenting a nostalgic throwback to the old white supremacist right - even if it does not make the case that any group of white people is fundamentally menace to society. The movement has touted itself as a “people’s movement,” a “cultural interest,” and a “profession of white identity.”

While the alt-right has been criticized for its intolerance and racism, it has also been praised for its lack of discrimination against other races, sexual orientations, and religions. The movement is made up of a diverse group of people, including those who are openly neo-Nazi and white supremacist, as well as those who are less concerned about issues of race. Some members are also identified by their use of the term “alternative right,” which is often used to describe themselves as being outside of traditional political parties.

The movement has also been criticized for its association with violence and extremism. In 2017, a group of white nationalists were arrested in Tennessee after they were accused of plotting a mass shooting. In 2018, a neutron bomb was set off in a Tennessee town, which was later determined to be a hoax.

The alt-right has also been criticized for its support of Donald Trump. In 2016, Trump was supported by a large number of white nationalists, who saw him as a candidate who could provide a voice for their concerns.

In conclusion, the alt-right is a complex movement that has been praised and criticized for its beliefs and actions. It remains to be seen whether the movement will continue to grow in popularity or whether it will fade away over time.

In Iran, 15 Fans Militancy Among Minorities

Iran is taking radical measures to deter and punish fans who engage in violent behavior during football matches. The authorities have arrested several fans who were found guilty of aggression and violence during recent matches.

On August 9, IS issued a video threatening new attacks in Iran, which has been condemned by the Iranian government. The authorities have arrested several fans who were found guilty of aggression and violence during recent matches.

On August 12, white nationalist demonstrators held a rally in Charlottesville, Virginia, where they confronted counter-protesters. They burned a Bible and invoked the heritage of the South. They rejected the notion that the war was about slavery. They thought that the blood shed by soldiers of both sides bore witness to a “new” idea of a “white identity.”

In conclusion, the White Nationalists are questioning the legitimacy of the state and institutions that have come before them. They are seeking to define a new identity for themselves and their communities. Their actions are often characterized by violence and aggression, and they are seen as a threat to the stability of the country.

In Conclusion

The alt-right movement has been characterized by its intolerance and racism, as well as its lack of discrimination against other races, sexual orientations, and religions. BUFFON JOINS MESSI AND RONALDO ON UEFA SHORTLIST

MONACO (REUTERS) - Italian goalkeeper Gianluigi Buffon has been selected as one of three nominees for the 2016/17 UEFA Men’s Player of the Year Award alongside Lionel Messi and Cristiano Ronaldo, European football’s governing body announced yesterday. The 39-year-old Buffon was a key member of the Juventus side that reached last season’s Champions League final, but he missed out on a first-ever medal as his team were beaten 4-1 by Real Madrid in Cardiff. The shortlist was decided by 80 coaches of the clubs that played in the Champions League and Europa League group stages, as well as 55 journalists, one-time Buffon 40s’ winner Gianluigi Buffon has been nominated twice, as has Portuguese forward Ronaldo. Since Buffon’s inception in 2001, unlike other similar individual awards, the UEFA accolade has not been dominantly won by Ronaldo and Messi. — AFP

LORENTE READY TO PLAY FOR SWANSEA

LONDON: Spanish international striker Fernando Lorette could be ready to play for Swansea City against Preston North End on Saturday, after overcoming a sore knee problem. The striker has been ruled out of the squad for this week's matches against Leeds United and Watford, but is now back in training and could be fit to face the team from the broken arm he suffered on a family cycling holiday in Italy in July. Meanwhile, Welsh international striker Jordan Cox, who played a crucial role in maintaining Swansea’s Premier League status last season. would not be ready for the visit of Manchester United this weekend as he had a long-term knee injury. “We will see,” Clement told the club website about the 25 million pounds (4.4m euros) from Sevilla last year. “Because of the nature of the injury, it was a bit of a surprise body blow. — AFP

KUWAIT SHOOTING CHAMPION RETURNS HOME

By Abdellatif Sharaa

KUWAIT: Minister of Commerce and Industry, Acting State Minister for Youth Affairs Khalid Al-Roudhan said “we congratulate Kuwait’s shooters and the Shooting Sport Federation for their achievements, as Asia’s top shooting country, and was able to top many countries like China, India along with many others.” He said “we are used to Kuwait shooters raising Kuwait’s flag in many arenas.” He thanked the KSF administration as well as shooters who exerted their utmost efforts.

He conveyed the greetings of H.E. the Amir and HH the Crown Prince to the shooters, adding that there are direct and indirect instructions to support the shooters and that they remain on top with Kuwait’s name always in prominence.

Minister Al-Roudhan made his statement during the reception of Kuwait’s shooters at Kuwait airport upon their arrival from Kazakhstan. Meanwhile, President of Kuwait and Arab Shooting Federations Eng. Khadija Khal Al-Qadi thanked H.E. the Amir Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Jaber Al-Sabah and HH the Crown Prince Sheikh Nawaf Al-Ahmad Al-Mohammad. Sheikh Sabah, as well as Youth Affairs Minister Khalid Al-Roudhan for receiving the champions who won the first place in Asia during the 7th Asian Shooting Tournament. Al-Qadi hoped that these champion continue to make their achievements and honor Kuwait’s flag high.

SEATTLE: Jarrod Dyson #1 of the Seattle Mariners is tagged out by Tim Beckham #1 of the Baltimore Orioles after trying to make it to second base on a center field flyout by Jean Segura #2 in the fifth inning at Safeco Field on Monday.

"It was one of those cuts that we're going to play to against," Jarrod Dyson said before the game. "We've had some good games against him and we've had some losses to him. It's not what we want, but it's not going to set us up to lose anything." The Orioles won the game 5-2.

Chance to score against Bettis came when Ender Inciarte led off with a triple, but he was thrown out on the play as he tried to score on a groundout. The second baseman led off with a triple in the fourth and went 2 for 4 with a run and a double. Inciarte led off with a triple in the fourth and went 2 for 4 with a run and a double.

Mariano Rivera was the first player to join the Hall of Fame as a pitcher. He was selected unanimously in his first year of eligibility. The right-hander pitched 19 seasons with the Yankees, finishing his career with 423 saves and 303 relief appearances. He was also a five-time All-Star and a two-time World Series champion.

"I think he's one of the greatest players ever," Kasparov said of the former chess grandmaster. "I think he's one of the best players ever, and I think he's one of the best ever to play the game of chess."
LONDON: Diego Costa, round off with English Premier League champions Chelsea, is back to haunt his former club Arsenal. Costa scored twice to cap off a night of suspense between players and their employers.

The Spaniard was on target for the second time in nine minutes. His first strike looked to have settled the contest, but the Premier League leaders had to hang on for dear life against a determined Gunners side. Costa finished the night with net four in matched with 10-man Arsenal.

LONDON: Robert Lewandowski keeps scoring. The Poland striker continued his fine form as he scored a hat-trick against Augsburg, with questions about a lack of depth in Bayern Munich's attack. Lewandowski, who also helped his side in a 2-1 win over Eintracht Frankfurt in the DFB-Pokal last weekend, has scored 16 goals in 14 Bundesliga games this season.

BERLIN: Germany's coach Joachim Loew expects his team to qualify for the 2020 European Championship. The team is scheduled to play three friendlies in September, including against England.

BERLIN: Chelsea manager Antonio Conte is under pressure following a run of poor results. The Italian has not won any of his last five games in charge, and his team has dropped down to sixth place in the Premier League.

BERLIN: Robert Lewandowski, known as 'The Terrier', is one of the most lethal strikers in world football. He has scored 16 goals in 14 Bundesliga games this season, helping Bayern Munich to a 2-1 win over Eintracht Frankfurt in the DFB-Pokal last weekend.

LONDON: Five teams to watch out for this season in the English Premier League. They are: Manchester United, Liverpool, Arsenal, Tottenham Hotspur, and Chelsea.
Zidane angered by five-game Ronaldo ban

MADRID: Real Madrid coach Zinedine Zidane expressed his anger yesterday at a five-game ban for striker Cristiano Ronaldo for picking up a referee after being sent off against Barcelona in the Spanish Super Cup.

Madrid hold a 3-1 first leg lead going into the second leg against their fierce rivals tonight (2100 GMT) but Zidane said he would have to do without Ronaldo.

The World Player of the Year was controversially shown a second yellow card for diving on Sunday and handed an extra four-game ban by UEFA for pushing referee Miguel de Burgos Bengoetxea after being shown the yellow.

"We are very annoyed with that," Zidane said. "We are very angry with that. We are very disappointed with that."

"When you look at anything that happened, you think Cristiano won't play any games with it… it's infuriating," Madrid's appeal against the red card, which could reduce the ban from five games to four, will be held before the game today.

"The appeal committee will meet and I hope they will come up with a solution," Zidane said. "Cristiano is annoyed because he wants to play and when he doesn't play, he gets angry."

Ronaldo was on the field for just 24 action-packed minutes on Sunday as he was sent off after an alleged dive despite being awarded a penalty for a foul after a curated pre-season tour due to his participation in the Confederations Cup with Portugal.

He made a huge impact with a stunning strike to put Madrid into a 1-1 level after 10 minutes from time, but suddenly picked up his first yellow card for removing his shirt in celebration. And two minutes later he was dismissed as he fell inside the area under pressure from Samuel Umtiti.

"Cristiano's ban is excessive," added Madrid defender Dani Carvajal. "It's a frustrating feeling for him. Hopefully the committee will reduce it by a few games."

"I'm part of it and it's going to be a big thing. And two minutes later he was dismissed as he fell inside the area under pressure from Samuel Umtiti. ZIDANE HATED FOR TOP RANKING

PILSKOVÁ, HALEP FIGHT FOR TOP RANKING

CINCINNATI: With sidelined Serena Williams about to have a baby, five players have a chance to grab the world number one ranking at this week's US Open tuneup event in Cincinnati.

Williams, a 23-time Grand Slam champion who announced her pregnancy and the end of her season in April, bowed out the top seed after 16 consecutive weeks through last September's Western & Southern Open for an Open Era record.

Serena was replaced by Germany's Angelique Kerber earlier this year.

Defending champion Karolina Pliskova took over the top seed position five weeks ago and will lose points from her tour win opening the door for rivals to overtake her.

Kerber's second-ranked Simona Halep, world number three Kerber, Ukraine's fourth-ranked Elina Svitolina and fifth-ranked Czech Karolina Pliskova could claim the top seed.

"Nothing has changed. I have a big responsibility. I'll do my best as I have done before," Pliskova said. "I don't think it's a huge thing but I don't want to do anything just because of the rankings. I don't try to be better (than my opponents) I just try not to see the pressure."

With Pliskova taken out of the mix for Cincinnati, there is anything else of a repeat group Halep can reach to number one by winning the title. "To have no number one on the world is a big thing. You have been champion. You have won the place. It's always the place, for me I want to win," Halep said. The Romanian forever remembers haunted by a French Open final loss to Jelena Ostapenko in which she was up a set and a break before squandering a chance at her first Grand Slam title and number one.

"I still have bad dreams about that," Halep said. "I will suffer. She also tried to forget a 6-3, 6-3 loss to Pliskova in the Toronto semifinals, one for which she apologized to spectators on Monday. "It was really disappointing. It was a horror match for me," Halep said. "I couldn't feel the ball. I can't say I wasn't ready to play."

WASHINGTON: US retail sales recorded their biggest increase in seven months in July as consumers bought a surge of motor vehicles and (and discretionary spending) warning the economy continued to gain momentum early in the third quarter. Retail sales for July and August also saw higher inflation expectations, the rate of wage growth has struggled to break above 2.5 percent. — Reuters

Moscow: New US sanctions on Moscow have forced Russian business leaders to accept that Donald Trump’s real power to power is not about to produce a “Trump Bump” in for- eign investment. After Trump became US president, some investors said they would be prepared to contemplate new deals with Russian firms if they saw signs that US-Russian ties were improving and US restrictions on business with Russia were being relaxed. But the new sanctions, signed onto law by Trump on August 2, got the business community and badly in need of sustained improvement of sanctions which suggests they will be hellishly clear—there is no immediate prospect of Washington soft-ening its stance towards Moscow. Russia faces the coddling of sanctions which suggests they will be hellishly difficult to take off and are likely to remain in place for the very long term, said Tim He, a strategist at BlueBay asset management in London. “The new fact that the US and Western governments...

May lead to business delegation to Japan

LONDON: British Prime Minister Theresa May will visit Japan this month with her Japanese counterpart Shinzo Abe in a bid to boost trade and investment as the UK seeks new business links outside the EU after Brexit.

May will lead a business delegation to Japan, including the chairmen of Barclays, the Bank of England, the Confederation of British Industry and the Financial Conduct Authority. May will visit Tokyo on June 18 and Osaka on June 19 to meet with Japanese business leaders and officials.

May and Abe will discuss the future of the UK-Japan relationship and the potential for growth in both economies. They will also address the challenges facing the global economy and the importance of free trade and investment.

In addition to economic discussions, May and Abe are expected to discuss the importance of maintaining a strong partnership between the two countries. They will also talk about the importance of working together on issues such as climate change, security, and global development.

The visit is seen as a significant moment in the UK-Japan relationship, with the two countries having a long history of cooperation and trade.

Surge in Sweden's inflation adds pressure for rate rise

STOCKHOLM: Undermining inflation topped the Swedish central bank’s agenda on Wednesday, with members of the Riksbank looking increasingly at triggers for tightening monetary conditions.

The central bank is also facing pressure from the government to raise interest rates, as inflation has failed to meet the 2 percent target for years.

The central bank’s latest report on international markets noted that the US are in fact making new historic highs (Dow Jones Industrial 22,800). The US performance is juxtaposed with a more tepid growth, relatively high inflation, traditional sector protectionism and potential trade wars.

Inflation in Sweden, which has been below target for years, is edging up but remains far below the 2 percent level. The Riksbank publishes its next rate decision forecast headline inflation of 1.64 percent and underlying inflation by pushing down import prices. “It is not a scenario that we are talking about, “Ingves said.

The central bank has its eye on the world Economic Outlook (WEO), which kept its growth forecasts for 2017 and 2018 unchanged at 3.1 percent and 3.2 percent respectively. The central bank is also watching the eurozone, where its inflation projections have been revised down.

In April, large firms in Britain were required by law to publish gender pay gaps, with companies employing more than 250 employees required to report on their male and female pay. The pay gap for ethnic minorities is 5.7 percent.

The central bank is also concerned about the potential for rising inflation, with pay gaps rising in the context of lower prices at the heart of the Swedish central bank’s policy.

SOLID GERMAN GROWTH GIVES MERKEL ELECTION TAILWIND

GERMANY: The German economy report is expected to show solid growth in the second quarter, with the country's GDP increasing at an annual rate of 0.6% in Q2, from 2.1% in Q1. This would be a rebound from the first quarter's contraction, which was driven by weakness in the automotive sector and the partial closure of the Suller gas pipeline. The consensus forecast before the data was 0.5%. However, the latest data shows that Germany's economy is still vulnerable to external shocks, particularly from the US, which has imposed tariffs on steel and aluminum. The German government has been lobbying for a waiver on these tariffs, but so far, its pleas have fallen on deaf ears. The country's exports are a key driver of its economy, and any disruption to trade could have significant implications.

FUTURE OUTLOOK: The German government is expected to continue to prioritize fiscal consolidation, with plans to cut the budget deficit further in the coming years. This is likely to be a challenge, given the country's high level of government debt and the need to invest in infrastructure and education to support long-term growth. The government has also promised to raise the minimum wage and improve the country's education system, which could provide a boost to consumption and investment in the short term. However, the success of these measures will depend on the country's ability to attract foreign investment and maintain its competitive advantage in global markets.

ECONOMIC POLICY: The German government is set to present its annual economic policy statement on August 17, which will outline its plans for the coming year. The government has already announced a package of measures to support small and medium enterprises, including tax breaks for research and development and increased funding for vocational training. However, it remains to be seen whether these measures will be sufficient to boost productivity and investment in the long term.

MARKET IMPLICATIONS: The strong economic performance could provide a boost to the German stock market, which has been relatively resilient to global shocks. The country's large and diversified economy makes it less vulnerable to external shocks than some of its smaller European neighbors. However, the risks posed by protectionism remain, and the government will need to be vigilant in order to avoid a slowdown in growth.

HELLERSTADT: "Germany's economy is showing signs of life, with its exports a key driver of growth. The country's fiscal and monetary policy is focused on consolidating its public finances, which is necessary to maintain investor confidence. However, the strong euro and the uncertainty surrounding Brexit could be challenges for the country's exporters. The government will need to be proactive in order to ensure that Germany remains competitive in the global economy."
NEW YORK: US stocks opened flat yesterday after North Korea’s leader delayed a decision on firing missiles towards Guam, pointing to receding tensions between the United States and North Korea.

Pyongyang’s plans to fire missiles near the US Pacific territory prompted a surge in tensions in the region last week, with President Donald Trump saying the US military was “locked and loaded.”

“North Korea has stepped back, things are back to somewhat normal,” said Mark Spellman, portfolio manager at Alpine Funds in New York.

“US companies and the markets have also been benefiting from the global economic expansion. For the first time in many years, you’ve got a lot of economies throughout the world doing better,” Spellman added.

At 9:42 am ET (1342 GMT), the Dow Jones Industrial Average was up 29.01 points, or 0.13 percent, at 22,022.72, the S&P 500 was up 1.17 points, or 0.05 percent, at 2,467.01.

The Nasdaq Composite was up 1.12 points, or 0.02 percent, at 6,341.35.

Six of the 11 major S&P sectors were lower, with telecom sector’s 0.70 percent fall leading the decliners. Data showed US retail sales recorded their biggest increase in seven months in July as consumers boosted purchases of motor vehicles as well as discretionary spending.

The data helped the dollar touch its highest level against a basket of major currencies in nearly three weeks. Among stocks, Home Depot was down 2.6 percent, despite the US home improvement chain reporting quarterly profit and comparable sales that topped estimates. The stock weighed the most on the Dow and the S&P 500.

Coach was off more than 6 percent after the handbag maker issued full-year sales forecast that missed analysts’ estimates. Dick’s Sporting Goods hit near seven-year lows after the sports-wear retailer’s quarterly same-store sales and profit missed estimates.

Advance Auto Parts touched near four-year low by the company lowered its 2017 comparable-store sales forecast after posting a weaker-than-expected quarterly profit. The stock touched a near four-year low.

The data helped the dollar touch its highest level against a basket of major currencies in nearly three weeks. The dollar rose to its highest level against the Japanese yen, touching its highest in more than a week and on pace for its largest daily rise against the yen since June. The euro fell to its lowest against the dollar since Aug. 9. There were two factors that helped push the dollar to its highs, said Joe Manimbo, senior market analyst at Western Union Business Solutions in Washington D.C.

“One was that the consumer had been a no-show in recent months, and two was just the tailwind the dollar enjoyed before the data,” he said. “The specter of cooler heads prevailing on the geopolitical front is dollar positive, particularly against safe-haven rivals.”

July’s reading showed the largest gain in the retail sales reading since December 2016 and followed June’s upwardly revised 0.3 percent gain. “The number showed broad-based strength, it beat forecasts both on the headline and the core and what was also encouraging was how the number for June got revised from the red back into positive territory,” Manimbo said.

Currency market strategists also pointed to a general recovery by the dollar after its worst four months since 2011 against the euro and the basket of currencies used to measure its strength.

The dollar index was last up 0.7 percent to 94.061. It earlier touched its highest level since July 26. Sterling also dropped after UK inflation numbers came in marginally below forecast, pushing the pound through key levels against both the euro and dollar — Reuters

DUBAI: According to market reports, the home appliances and electronics market is currently undergoing a significant change where consumers are shifting from traditional products towards more modern, elegant and appealing products. The increase in purchasing power and improving lifestyles are fueling the demand for smart home appliances and electronics in the GCC, where the residents embrace a standard of living that affords them the leisure of buying the best devices.

According to the latest GCC market data, the home appliances market has had a significant rise in sales, driven by the increasing demand for quality and performance. The GCC is home to a growing number of high-income individuals who are willing to spend more on products that offer superior features and performance. This has led to a rise in the popularity of luxury brands and products that cater to the needs of a changing consumer base.

The GCC home appliances market is highly competitive, with manufacturers from around the world vying for a share of the market. The top players in the GCC market include Samsung, LG, and Sony, who are known for their high-quality products and innovative features. Other companies such as Bosch, Siemens, and Whirlpool are also present in the market, offering a range of products that cater to different consumer needs.

The GCC home appliances market is expected to continue growing at a fast pace in the coming years, driven by the increasing demand for smart home appliances and electronics. With the growing population and rising incomes, the GCC market is poised to become a major player in the global home appliances industry.

SHANGHAI: Facebook’s sneaky launch of a pho- to-sharing app in China has been quietly banned, given it is a small taste of the massive market’s potential, but it may have to settle for just that. For the US tech giant announced last week that it was behind the Colorful Balloons application, which is similar to its Moments app but without any mention of Facebook’s brand name.

Facebook has tried to “break the Great Firewall” — which tightly controls China’s Internet content — ever since it launched its service in 2009, just a year after it was registered in Beijing in March, according to the brand. But Facebook finally emerged in May.

The official launch of the US social media network in the China market. It may not be effective, but it is a sign that Facebook is determined to break into one of the world’s largest markets.

According to Facebook chief executive and co-founder Mark Zuckerberg, who has made high-profile visits to China and met with political leaders, it is a “very important market.”

“We have long said that we are interested in the country — and in spending time understanding and learning more about the country in different ways,” a Facebook representative said last week.

China’s 758th among all apps.

The app. “If the app can’t cross the Firewall and must register with a local mobile number and is too big to pass up.

Despite the ban, Facebook’s move in China is significant. According to the brand, it wants to “learn from the experience and insights of people living in China” to improve its products.

Failure and try again. This is the birth of a new brand and GCC home premium-branded segment, and looks to continue attracting consumers in the region — the GCC home appliance market.

LG. SIGNATURE brand has been gaining recognition across the globe from its launch to date. Following the company’s strategy, LG SIGNATURE was designed from the ground up to provide customers with the best possible experience.

47.6 percent of the GCC market share rose to 9.8 percent of the Indian market in 2017. Geely’s move to the GCC market is expected not only to boost sales but to strengthen the company’s market presence in the region.

KUWAIT: I was privileged to visit a dedicated pharmaceuticals company that plays a vital role in the society as it provides genuine and quality products. Novo Nordisk came into existence about 90 years ago. The idea came out of the love a husband has for his beloved wife as he sought ways to make and administer insulin so that his wife would live a normal life.

Novo Nordisk has become a global healthcare company that has been focusing on innovation and leadership in diabetes care. The President & CEO Lars Fruergaard Jorgensen said “the heritage has given us experience and capabilities that also enable us to help people defeat other serious chronic conditions: such as haemophilia, growth disorders and obesity. Novo Nordisk products are marketed in 165 countries. The company has research and development centers in China, Denmark, UK and US. Novo Nordisk employs over 42,000 staff, and supplies half of the world’s insulin. Over 28,000,000 individuals use Novo Nordisk products worldwide. In the health care sector, we have been an important player, and in the diabetes sector, we have grown the market by a large amount. Some type 2 diabetes cases can be prevented by adopting healthier lifestyles. Diabetes, which affects more than 415 million people around the world today, is expected to hit 642 million by 2040. It is estimated that 86,000 children develop Type 1 diabetes every year, while 90% of people with diabetes have Type 2. It is noted that 75% of Type 2 diabetes cases are prevented by adopting healthier lifestyles. The idea behind Saxenda came after the introduction of Victoza. When clinical studies were being made on Victoza prior to launching it, we realized a big side effect which is weight loss. This was something strange at the time because our experience was with insulin which creates weight gain. So almost every drug at the time which reduces HbA1C ought to increase weight. Executive Vice President, International Operations Mr. Mike Doustdar explained “Vic t oz a acted otherwise and actually in the brain where we went into the notion that this would be a good drug for even non-diabetic patients. Many people were prescribing it off label, so it was necessary to create the right dose for obese people. Saxenda sold most likely be launched next year and is it something we’ve been waiting for a long time. Saxenda is a glucagon-like peptide-1 (GLP-1) that is used in the treatment of type 2 diabetes. For now, it is in an injectable form. Responding to a question about diabetes awareness program in Kuwait, he said that there are 15 health personnel in Kuwait. He said that there are 400,000 patients with diabetes according to IDF; 300,000 of them are diagnosed which means that the awareness and the diagnostics are more advanced now. That is really good, but in terms of those 400,000, there are only 50,000 who are living a normal life. “We need to put more emphasis on making sure they have the best medicine, and I am very happy with Trisba, which was recently launched,” he added.

Novo Nordisk commitment to the environment

- 50% renewable power at production sites in 2030
- Reusable energy initiative in Denmark
- Wind power
- Bio-liquid gas
- Biomass for steam (expected 2019)
- Work across the value chain to cut CO2 emissions
- Packagings
- Improve energy efficiency and renewable energy at production
- Reduce an transport in distribution of our products

Moore confident as brand ambassador for L'O real

The 36-year-old actress has joined fellow movie icon Demi Moore, who she has admitted she feels honoured to have partnered with the label above any other because she likes everything the brand stands for.

‘It made sense,’ said Moore. ‘I generally feel confident with the brand because it represents people all over the world — every nationality, every culture, and every age. I love its aesthetic — its accessibility, its inspiration, and its creativity. It’s beautiful and doesn’t have to be complicated or mysterious. And like that as all of these different representations of beauty.’

And the red haired beauty has hinted she has a slight input in the products as different.

Statistics have shown that it takes the average woman 61 minutes per day to make smart food choices. That is 15 days that we waste our energy on deciding what’s best for us and have fewer “feelings of guilt” about our food choices. Cruise will need months to recover after MI6

The 51-year-old actor was filming the latest movie in the Mission: Impossible franchise - in which he plays MI6 agent Ethan Hunt - over the weekend when he was injured during a stunt which involved jumping from rigging onto a nearby building rooftop. Now, it has been reported that the star has suffered two broken bones in his ankle, and his recuperation time has left the production of the movie halted for four months.

A source told The Sun newspaper: “The injury is worse than was at first feared. Tom did serious damage and will need months to recover. He is the film’s biggest star and everything revolves around him. The movies have no choice other than to postpone the release.” At the time of the accident, MI6 was due to release its TV slot and the release date for the movie will need to be altered in order to meet the delay in filming caused by the accident. However, MI6 producer David Ellison was quoted as saying: “This accident is not going to stop the show.”

The movie is the latest film in the Mission Impossible series, and has the working title MI6. The next installment in the series is scheduled for release in 2023.

Prince set to get his own shade of purple

The late musical icon - who passed away in April last year at the age of 57 after an accidental fentanyl overdose - has become synonymous with the color since the release of his hit single and album ‘Purple Rain’ in 1984, and it has now been revealed that The Pantone Color Institute have teamed up with the late star’s estate to develop a new shade of the color in his honor. The color, entitled Love Symbol #2, after the star’s famous love symbol change to an unpronounceable symbol known as the Love Symbol in the late 1990s, is inspired by his custom-made purple piano. The Pantone Color Institute have named the color Love Symbol #2, a distinct new purple shade created in memory of Prince. Love Symbol #2 is emblematic of Prince’s distinctive style. "Long associated with the personality, Love Symbol #2 is a versatile and unique purple shade to be consistently replicated and maintains the same iconic status as the man himself. Meanwhile, it was previously revealed that a musical video set on the works of the Little Red Convertible Forever is in the works in memory of the late icon. The creator behind the Michael Jackson-themed musical ‘‘Purple Rain’ is the creative mind behind the show. The show will feature a new song from Prince’s 1984 hit “Raspberry Beret.”

Khole fortunate to be dating Tristan Thompson

The 33-year-old reality star struck up a relationship with the Cleveland Cavaliers basketball player last year, and has said she is lucky to be dating someone she has so much in common with, especially when it comes to being “organized.” Writing in a new post on the app, the star - who has two kids with her ex-husband Lamar Odom, and is set to marry Tristan in December - explained: “As the saying goes, ‘it’s the little things that make a happy marriage.’”

Caboella feels ‘comfortable’ now after leaving Fifth Harmony

The 20-year-old musician parted ways with the girl group in 2016, and has said that she is enjoying the newfound freedom the separation has offered her. Speaking to a fan on Twitter, she said: “To be a solo artist, you don’t have to worry about being a part of a group, which can be quite challenging because you have to fit with everyone else. As a result, the FIFTH Club has found her style has "loosened" because she is "comfortable in [her] own skin". She added: “I think my style has evolved because I’m looking at a person who I’m always growing and creating myself, and because style is an expression of how you feel, it changes as [you change].”

She also revealed that she is currently dating Tristan Thompson, and has said that she is "the best relationship I’ve ever been in". She added: “I definitely want a family, but I don’t feel any pressure. It’s all about timing.”

Dwayne Johnson ‘so proud’ of his ‘baby girl’ Simone

The 45-year-old actor has taken to social media to gush about his 16-year-old daughter - who he has with his former partner Dany Garcia - on her birthday, which saw him tell his ‘little girl’ how proud he is of her. Alongside an image of the former professional wrestler - who was known as The Rock - with Simone by his side when she was a child, which was shared on the star’s Instagram account, he wrote: “And just like that my baby girl @simonegjohnson turns 16. Feels like it was just yesterday I held her tiny body in my hands the day she was born as a @wwe legend and good take care of you for the rest of my life!”

True story. “The Texas born star - whose mother, Mandy Teefey, is from Mexico - has admitted she wishes she was fluent in Spanish and French. When asked what language she yearned to learn, she replied: “Depends on my mood! #streamwithselena”

Tristan is a great dad and he definitely wants more children, but we both agree we don’t want any more at this time. Gomez’s younger sister is her spirit animal

The 25-year-old singer has credited her four-year-old sister Gracie as the most inspirational person in her life, because she believes the younger is “cooler” than her. She revealed in a Q&A on Twitter as part of a 30 minute #StreamWithSelena session, one social media user asked who her “spirit animal” was, to which the beautiful beauty - who also has three-year-old sister Toni - replied: “My little sister Gracie. She’s kind of a little wild child. She’s so free.”

She added: “Sometimes I have to even if it’s not perfected (sic).”

O ur nation’s capital, a digital-world paint-er’s utopia, is floundering. Billboards are blank, with a blizzard of nothing falling over the city. What once was a vibrant art scene has been reduced to a shadow of its former self. But amid this bleakness, a glimmer of hope shines through: the work of Paul Lindahl and his colleagues at Colossal Media. For them, it’s not just a job—it’s a mission to reclaim the city’s lost artistic spirit.

The New York-based company, which specializes in large-scale wall murals and projection art, has been working to bring life back to the city’s streets. “Technology took over and there was really no need for hand painting at the time,” Lindahl recalls. “But then things changed.”

Without the company he works for, he believes it would be more difficult for the city to become the leader in painted advertising. “That’s why this company has done so well,” he says. “It means people can actually watch the process.”

But is it art?

That’s a question that sometimes arises in the minds of those who see the company’s work. “I’ve always believed that the city itself is the canvas,” Lindahl says. “And that’s what we’re doing—we’re painting on the walls.”

The work is not without its challenges. “It’s still the same process as other street art,” he admits. “It’s just that we’re using a different medium.”

The company’s murals have been featured in New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago, and have even been seen in Times Square. “It’s amazing how much attention a single piece of work can draw,” Lindahl says.

And it’s not just the artwork that draws people in. “It’s the whole experience,” he says. “From the moment you see the mural, to the moment you walk past it, there’s something special about it.”

It was a leap of faith, admits Paul Lindahl, co-founder of Colossal Media, to work on walls in New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago. “It’s a big commitment, but it’s also a big opportunity,” he says. “And we’re taking it.”

The future of painted advertising is bright. Lindahl believes that it will continue to grow as technology becomes more advanced. “We’re just at the beginning of something special,” he says.

But for now, the work continues. “We’re at a moment in time where new kinds of experience are possible,” Lindahl says. “And we’re seizing the opportunity.”

The work is a testament to the power of art and the importance of creativity in our cities. “It’s not just about the paintings,” Lindahl says. “It’s about the experience. It’s about the story it tells.”

And that story is one that people will remember for a long time to come. “It’s a timeless art form,” Lindahl says. “And it’s going to be with us forever.”

The fraternity of tribute artists keeps Elvis alive

Elvis Presley was more than just a singer. He was a cultural icon, a pop culture prophet, and a force of nature. His influence is felt to this day, and his legacy is preserved through the work of tribute artists who continue to pay homage to the King of Rock and Roll.

These artists are not just performers—they are storytellers, visual artists, and cultural historians. They bring to life the story of Elvis Presley through the medium of art, creating works that capture the spirit of the King and his music.

One of these artists is Matty Reaves, who has been working on a project called “The Legends of the King.” The project is a digital exhibition that brings together works from some of the top tribute artists in the world. The exhibition is being held in New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago, and will feature works from artists such as Reaves, Whoopi Goldberg, and Aerosmith.

Matty Reaves is one of the artists involved in the project. “We’re trying to capture the essence of Elvis in a way that’s unique and new,” he says. “We’re using a digital medium to bring his story to life.”

The project is a collaboration between Reaves and other artists, including Whoopi Goldberg and Aerosmith. “We’re all working together to create something special,” Reaves says.

The project is not just a celebration of Elvis Presley—it’s a celebration of art and creativity. “We’re trying to show people that art is alive and well, and that we can still create something new,” Reaves says.

The “Legends of the King” project is just one of many that are being created to honor the memory of Elvis Presley. “We’re just starting to scratch the surface of what’s possible,” Reaves says. “There’s so much more we can do.”

The tribute artists are not just creating art—they are working to keep Elvis’s legacy alive. “It’s a responsibility we take very seriously,” Reaves says. “We want to make sure that his memory lives on forever.”

The “Legends of the King” project will be on display in New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago from now until August 31. For more information, visit the website www.legendsoftheking.com.

The idea, Ahluwalia said, was to have visitors participate in the “greening” of the tree and to think of peace and reconciliation between the two nations. “You may feel so grateful to that generation who, I think, helped rebuild the nation, despite having suffered such traumas,” Ahluwalia said.

She said she wanted to create the museum “out of a desire to tell the story of how the region’s border, the now-elderly survivors. The exhibitions, housed in the red-brick Town Hall building in the north Indian border city of Amritsar, include photographs, newspapers, personal items to the museum, including 81-year-old Debi Dass, who was among millions of displaced from their ancestral homes. Woven fabrics from craftsmen of the time. A trio of Antiques.

Foundation of history

While the bloody events of Partition became a foundational part of India’s history and identity, depicting countless works of art, literature and film, there has been no official expression of regret, and Indian leaders have been cautious in mentioning the communal violence that coincided with the country’s earliest days. There are no memorials to those who perished.

Tuesday, Prime Minister Narendra Modi made no mention of Partition itself while regretting the fact that it was part of India’s freedom struggle. The memorial, he said, should reflect realities on both sides. “If a topic has simply been too painful for many to dwell on, and that reconciliation would need to be two-sided to work. Even the museum, he said, should reflect realities on both sides. “It’s a one-sided memory,” Viswanathan said. “We have to acknowledge the
