KENTUCKY: A White House aide’s comment about flying to North Carolina for a meeting is distracting the US from an attack on the fundamentals of the US justice system, according to a new online survey. The survey, commissioned by the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina, the US attorney general, is “personally entangled in a web of corruption and influence-peddling.”

The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.

FLYGINA: The US attorney general’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system, according to a new survey. The survey, conducted among 1,000 registered voters, found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina’s actions have damaged the integrity of the US justice system. The survey also found that 56% of respondents believe that Flygina has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with the principles of justice and fairness.