JINPING TO MEET FIFA BOSS AS CHINA HARBOURS WCUP AMBITION

BEIJING: Football’s President Gianni Infantino meets with FIFA chief Gianni Infantino in Beijing tomorrow as the world’s most popular sport prepares for its World Cup in Russia later this year.

Infantino, the former Swiss football executive who held five of the most powerful roles in European football, will be at the heart of the game when he arrives in Beijing.

He will be accompanied by a raft of high-profile guests from around the world, including former World Cup winners and current international stars.

In a statement that an agreement in principle had been reached for the final of the 2022 World Cup to be held in Qatar, the Chinese government confirmed that Infantino would visit China.

The visit comes as China faces a number of challenges on the international stage, including a growing trade deficit and rising U.S. trade tariffs.

Infantino’s visit also comes as China looks to increase its influence in world football, with the country set to host the 2022 World Cup in 2022.

During the visit, Infantino is expected to meet with Chinese officials and football stakeholders, including the Chinese Football Association (CFA) and the Chinese Super League (CSL).

The CFA, which is responsible for the administration of professional football in China, has been working with FIFA to organize the 2022 World Cup.

Infantino is expected to discuss the progress of the organizing committee, as well as potential areas for cooperation between the two organizations.

He is also expected to meet with high-level officials from the Chinese government, including Premier Li Keqiang and Foreign Minister Wang Yi.

The visit is likely to be seen as an important step in China’s efforts to become a more influential player in world football, with the country looking to use its hosting of the 2022 World Cup as a platform to showcase its support for the sport.

Infantino is scheduled to arrive in Beijing on Tuesday, with his visit expected to last for several days.

During his stay, he is expected to meet with a number of key football figures, including CFA President Chen Yulu and CSL Chairman Wu Xiaodong.

He is also expected to visit the National Stadium, also known as the “Bird’s Nest,” which will host the opening and closing ceremonies of the 2022 World Cup.

Infantino’s visit is likely to be a significant event for China, with the country looking to use the occasion to promote its image as a world football power.

His visit is also likely to be seen as a show of support for the 2022 World Cup, which is set to be held in Qatar in 2022.

The decision to host the tournament in Qatar was met with criticism from some quarters, with concerns being raised about the country’s human rights record.

However, Infantino and FIFA have been keen to stress that the tournament will be held in a safe and welcoming environment.

China has previously hosted the 2008 Olympic Games, and has been looking to use its hosting of the 2022 World Cup as a chance to showcase its ability to stage major sporting events.
