Chau latest in long line of American Christian missionaries

J ake Chau, killed by members of the Sinaloa drug cartel in July in Ecuador, is the latest in a long line of American missionaries who have died in the struggle to spread Christ’s teachings. The first Christian missionaries reached Peru as early as the 16th century and Brazil as early as the 17th century, and there are more than 200 years, according to Dr. Todd Johnson, who led the mission to the South of the North (Christianity) at the Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, Southhampton, Massachusetts and has been with the mission since 1822.

“Chau was killed in a 
