O ur fight against COVID-19 is a truly global battle. Together, we can slowly turn the corner on this pandemic. It will take the world as a whole and all of us working together to get there. But the goal is within reach – but we must act decisively now. By taking swift action, we can slow the spread of this deadly virus and save countless lives. The sooner we can do this, the sooner we can begin to return to our normal lives.

The World Health Organization has declared the COVID-19 pandemic a global disaster. It is affecting every country in the world, and its impact is felt everywhere. But we can still turn this around if we work together.

First, we need to suppress transmission of the coronavirus. That means getting everyone to stay at home, washing their hands frequently, and wearing masks when they go outside. We also need to ensure that healthcare workers have the supplies they need to protect themselves.

Second, we need to work together to strengthen health systems around the world. That means investing in healthcare facilities and training healthcare workers so they can provide the care people need. It also means ensuring that people can afford the care they need, including in low-income countries.

Finally, we need to support those who have been hit hardest by this pandemic. That means providing financial assistance to those who have lost their jobs, ensuring that everyone has access to food and other basic necessities, and supporting vulnerable communities.

Together, we can do this. We are strong enough to beat this pandemic, and we must act now to ensure a brighter future for all.

By Antonio Guterres

Secretary-General of the United Nations

---

All hands on deck to fight a once in a lifetime pandemic

By A Saleh

E-Learning classes optional, to resume in Aug

KUWAIT: The Kuwaiti government has announced that schools will reopen in August with an optional e-learning system. The government also announced that schools will be closed for the remainder of the year due to the ongoing pandemic.

---

MoE: e-learning classes optional, to resume in Aug

By A Saleh

KUWAIT: The Ministry of Education has announced that schools will reopen in August with an optional e-learning system. The government also announced that schools will be closed for the remainder of the year due to the ongoing pandemic.

---

Iraqis rally to help needy families as economy falters

BAGHDAD: An estimated 10 million Iraqis are facing economic hardship due to the ongoing pandemic. The government has announced that it will provide financial assistance to those in need, including food stamps and cash transfers.

---

People are still getting married amid lockdown

By Nawar Failakawi

KUWAIT: While the government is taking precautions to prevent the spread of the coronavirus, weddings and other gatherings have continued in the country. However, some parents are concerned about the safety of their children.

---

Abdel Mohsen Al-Huwailah regulating the study plan, means of assessment and unit tests. The decision contains foreign private schools to prepare special forms to resume the 2019-2020 academic year online with an optional system. He also called for speeding up the process of sending home all stranded students.

---

People are still getting married amid lockdown

By Nawar Failakawi

KUWAIT: While the government is taking precautions to prevent the spread of the coronavirus, weddings and other gatherings have continued in the country. However, some parents are concerned about the safety of their children.

---

#COVID19: The World Health Organization (WHO) has declared the COVID-19 pandemic a global disaster. It is affecting every country in the world, and its impact is felt everywhere. But we can still turn this around if we work together.

First, we need to suppress transmission of the coronavirus. That means getting everyone to stay at home, washing their hands frequently, and wearing masks when they go outside. We also need to ensure that healthcare workers have the supplies they need to protect themselves.

Second, we need to work together to strengthen health systems around the world. That means investing in healthcare facilities and training healthcare workers so they can provide the care people need. It also means ensuring that people can afford the care they need, including in low-income countries.

Finally, we need to support those who have been hit hardest by this pandemic. That means providing financial assistance to those who have lost their jobs, ensuring that everyone has access to food and other basic necessities, and supporting vulnerable communities.

Together, we can do this. We are strong enough to beat this pandemic, and we must act now to ensure a brighter future for all.